Defending Champion In Third Spot

SIXTEEN-year-old Ronald Gouger of Stroudsburg defeated last year's champion and more than 40 other teenage contestants in the annual teenage safe-driving road-e-o held locally Saturday afternoon.

The youth won this year's title by 453 points out of a possible 500. He led his closest rival by 27 marks.

Claiming the second place post was Earl Budge, 17, of Saylorsburg. Third place winner was Larry Phillips, 18, of Stroudsburg — the existing champion title-holder before the 1958 road-e-o dropped into high gear.

Judges of the highly competitive test of driving skill and traffic knowledge were quick to point out, however, that the fourth rank spot — for which there is no recognition — was topped by a young lady.

Number Four
The girl, Miss Judy Papson, 17, of 1058 West Main St., was praised highly by the members of the sponsoring unit, the Pocono Mountains Jaycees. Judy, they noted, rang up 406 points. Described as the "most successful ever run," the road-e-o got underway shortly before 1 p.m. when official judges and scorers walked the group of 43 contestants around the four-phase obstacle course.

Although committee chairman Stan Grace recalled that the same number of teenagers competed in the first local road-e-o four years ago, he said that this year's event held the highest number of applicants.

The four-and-a-half hour long event was preceded the day before by a written exam which was given to the hopefuls at the school they attend. The test is designed to account for 200 of the 500 points.

In the driving test, four courses were laid out in the parking area behind Stroudsburg High School and consisted of the following: straight line, a serpentine, curve and offset, and parallel parking.

The first — the straight line — requires the driver to steer the vehicle both forward and backward through a 100 foot-long stretch of tennis balls straddling each side of the left front and rear tires.

Tennis Balls
The tennis balls are arranged for a total of about 3 1/2 inches clearance.

The serpentine obstacle is set up so that the driver must weave the vehicle in and out of three specifically spaced barrels; again, both forward and reverse.

The curve and offset test of skill meets the driver with a beginning of a curve course. The curve is flanked on both sides by stanchions which the driver can not strike under penalty of loss of points.

After operating the vehicle through the curve, the contestant must then maneuver it one car width to the left plus one foot. Accomplishing this, he or she then drives through a straight line course also flanked by stanchions.

The last obstacle — parallel parking — requires the driver to park the vehicle in a space the length of the car plus five feet.

Throughout the afternoon of testing driving skill of more than two-score Monroe County youthful drivers, the contestants watched others meet or falter at each of the demands of the tricky road-e-o courses.

Jaycees provided the teenagers with soft drink for the enduring tests. Many stood silently as they watched others.

In the announcement of the top three winners, Jaycees judges gave the following breakdown on scores: (all are of a possible 500) Gouger, 453; Budge, 426; Phillips, 423; and—honorable mention — Judy Papson, 406.

Young Gouger will receive the traveling trophy for its placement at the school — Stroudsburg High — he attends. Each of the three winners will receive a personal trophy.

According to Grace, the awards will be made in the near future during an assembly meeting of the students at Stroudsburg High School. Date for the presentation will be announced at a later date, Grace said.

ROAD-E-O OBSTACLE — An unidentified participant in the Pocono Mountains Jaycees teenage safe-driving road-e-o backs vehicle through complex course in his bid for the local championship. Fritz Heads Area Drive For Furman SUPPORTERS of Roy E. Furman's campaign for the Democratic nomination for governor have organized a Monroe County Committee under the chairmanship of Kenneth Fritz, of Marshalls Creek.

Two organization meetings were held within the past two weeks and a third is scheduled for Friday night at Regina's Hotel, East Stroudsburg RD 1, to plan the final push which will be climaxed with the Primary Election on May 20.

Impressive Show
Fritz said there had been an impressive show of strength in the county on behalf of Lt. Gov. Furman's independent candidacy. For this reason, he said, Friday's meeting was called to intensify the efforts and to enlarge upon the campaign planning.

Fritz said he has been in contact with Furman's campaign manager, Clyde H. Smith, in the hope of arranging a date for the lieutenant governor to make a campaign swing through this area before the election.

Since Lt. Gov. Furman expects to spend the last two weeks of his campaign in and around Philadelphia, Smith told Fritz he thought it likely that a trip to Monroe County can be arranged.

CROWE Insurance Agency presents its WEEKLY INSURANCE LETTER

Dear Friends:

At the meeting of the Pocono Mountains Motor Club last Tuesday evening I had the pleasure of hearing Clark McClelland, Director of Safety for the Pennsylvania Motor Federation speak. (He is no relative of mine as far as I know, by the way.)

From his talk we learned that in spite of increased motoring, the number of highway fatalities was decreasing. This is good news! However, we must remember that last year the American motorist killed about 38,500 other motorists—hardly a figure to cheer about.

As the weather continues to improve and we take to the highways let us all use caution when driving.

Safe driving saves lives! Slow down and live!

Sincerely yours,

Walter McClelland

MILFORD — Two persons were injured in a one-car accident on Legislative Route 5106 at 4:30 p.m. Saturday.

State Police of the local barracks identified the driver as Jerome L. Jacklow, 22, Brooklyn, N. Y. He sustained a scalp cut, right knee cut and bruises of the head and face.

His brother, identified only as E. Jacklow, a passenger in the vehicle, sustained brush burns and bruises of the face and arms. There was no record of either being hospitalized.

Troopers said the car left the highway, struck the berm and plowed into two trees. The vehicle was demolished.

Area Manufacturing Unemployment Small

ONLY a small percentage of the current unemployment in this area stems from the manufacturing industries, the Pennsylvania State Employment Service reported yesterday. This is contrary to the state and national pattern.

John P. Dougherty, manager of the Stroudsburg office, said that actually factory employment during March of this year was practically the same as in March, 1957. This observation was derived from employment trend information submitted by the 29 major manufacturing firms in the Pocono area.

Moderate increases in factory employment are forecast by major manufacturing firms for the forecast period April and May. Unemployment compensation claims are expected to continue high through May.

Recalls will occur in construction and resort industries but with a large volume of new construction work planned for the area, any losses in factory employment will no doubt be offset by construction gains.

Dougherty reported the number of idled workers filing claims for unemployment insurance continued to rise in March.

Total claims filed during the middle of March were 1,150, or 8.3 percent more than the number in mid-February.

These figures compared with 767 in March, 1957 and 904 in February, 1957. Dougherty's monthly report showed.

The industries contributing to the increased volume of claims filed were chiefly construction and service, with restaurants and hotels predominant in the latter group.

Seasonal factors, weather conditions and a curtailment in construction work were the principal contributing causes, the manager said.

Mental Health Strides

Mental health week, which began yesterday, is an opportune time for all of us to take inventory of the great strides made in the past generation in the treatment of those persons who are mentally ill.

Within the memory of every adult living today, certainly, stands out at least one account which illustrates the shameful conditions which once existed at our mental institutions.

These "insane asylums" were not considered as hospitals for the treatment of someone with an illness; rather, they were regarded all too often as places of incarceration. Once committed, a patient frequently was doomed to spend the rest of his life at the institution.

Because it was operated on a skimpy budget, the over-crowded institution seldom was able to provide many of the facilities and the trained personnel needed for proper care. Food as a rule lacked both quality and quantity. Cramped sleeping quarters did not allow for sufficient rest.

The patient usually had little or no personal contact with the outside world except possibly for an occasional visit from some member of his family. It was natural, therefore, for even those patients with a curable illness to become more depressed, rather than less, because the atmosphere essential for their recovery was lacking.

In recent years considerably more money has been allocated for the care and housing of the mentally ill. And steady progress has been made in treating the cases.

One of the greatest aids to the new approach in treatment is the person-to-person relationship which authorities seek to build up between patients and volunteer workers.

The volunteers supplement the regular staff in helping to bring about recovery by engaging in numerous activities with the patients, such as hobbies, crafts, sports, educational training and the like.

"The volunteer program," said Dr. Robert A. Matthews, commissioner of mental health, "has provided the necessary bridge to society from which the patient has come and towards which he is striving to return."

It is not surprising, therefore, to learn that a greater percentage of patients is now returning to normal livelihoods than ever before. With continued advances in the treatment and a greater understanding of mental health on the public's part, even greater strides can be expected in the future.

Cream Of The Crop

Dear Abby: I don't have any love problems to be solved but I think you can help me. I'm a patient in a veterans' hospital. My buddies and I have lots of time to read and watch TV and we never miss reading your column.

or watching Arthur Godfrey's program. A while back you were a guest on Godfrey's show and he read a collection of your best letters. He howled and so did the audience. Where can we get a collection of the "choice" letters like Godfrey had?

Dear Abby: I'm glad you asked that question because my first book (published by Prentice Hall) will be released April 28th. Today! It's a collection of all the "choice" Abby letters and I've named it, "DEAR ABBY" (wot else?). I hope you like it.

Dear Abby: When my boyfriend came to pick me up for our Saturday night date he took one look at my new sack dress and refused to take me out until I changed it. I paid a good price for that dress and it happens to be very nice. I put on another dress (a sheath from last year) but had a miserable time because we fought all evening over that sack dress. Was he right in making me change? UP TO DATE.

Dear Up: I think women should dress to please men. If you changed into last year's sheath, I'd say sack or no sack, he's got you "in the bag."

Dear Abby: I came across a strong box full of letters in the trunk of our car. I had the garage man use a blowtorch to open it. The letters were from a married woman who is in love with my husband. They are so full of mush and love talk it would nauseate you. Believe me, she leaves nothing to the imagination. I know her and her husband and they live in this town. Should I send the letters to HER husband and let him handle it in his own way?

BOILING OVER
Dear Boiling: Don't send the letters to her husband. Let your husband know you found them and try to settle it peacefully, involving as few innocent parties as possible.

Dear Abby: Saw the letter from the neighbor who complained because the bachelor in the apartment below snored so loud he kept her awake nights. I am a lady who is looking for a nice man. If he is between 45 and 60, please send me his name as I am very hard of hearing.

Good Evening Ladies!

Fashion Poem On Fashions

By Ken Duval

Well, I see the ladies have surrendered to the fashion designers and the sack gowns are beginning to show up, even in the hinterlands. I didn't think they'd do it — but I was once completely sure I'd never see a mother at a P. T. A. meeting in a dress above her knees, but I did.

However, there is a smidgen of balm in Gilead because I'm now reading that next year things are going to be different. Of course, at this early date, there is some disagreement about just how different things are going to be, one designer saying the bust will be de-emphasized and another saying it won't, and still another saying hips will be all the rage and others saying that hips will be "de trop" in 1959.

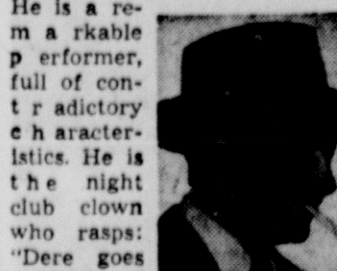

This annual shifting of the female anatomy from place to place, making some features disappear and others reappear after long absences, is very confusing to the male. If you will close your eyes and concentrate, I will fashion a poem for you:

Poem
The female form remains a mystery to me, but in a different way from what it was before I was dry behind the ears;
What baffles me now is how the dress designers can say, in their holy-toity way, that 1959's form will be different from this year's.
For example, we know that this year's woman comes fully equipped with hips and some even carry spares, but they're hidden under yards of cloth, and so is the boom; But next year, it says here, the girls are going to have to figure out some way to lose 'um.

It is easy enough to figure out how a girl with no hips at all can beat the rap if the designers suddenly say she has to get some;
All she has to do is sit down at her sewing machine and whip herself up a pair out of any old flotsam and jetsam.
Likewise, any girl who thinks Lollobrigida got all the breaks can eat herself into form and sit around all day with plenty of food near;
And, of course, if this fails, she can always get in touch with that great Akron industry, the one that's dominated by Goodyear.
But suppose she is already over-inventoried in all departments and the designers suddenly say everybody next year has to look boyish;
What happens then to the girl who has been trying for months to make her figure look Helen of Troyish?
If her accoutrements are not detachable and, in order to be fashionable, she has to put them somewhere where they can't possibly show,
How does she accomplish this miracle, which she usually does to the complete bafflement of the opposite sex; where do they go?
A rag, a bone, a hank of hair — this I can comprehend, and also tempers and temperaments that are easily combustible.
But even an old goat like me, who long ago understood mysteries, can't see how they can be so quickly and easily adjustable.

With Walter Winchell On Broadway

King Buffoon is reigning at the Clops. The Great Durante is being as uproarious as ever. He is a remarkable performer, full of contradictory characteristics. He is the night club clown who rasps: "Dere goes a load of ice wid three olives. Twelve-fifty! Somebody's gotta pay for the cocktail room." He is the anguished man who was extremely sensitive about the size of his schnoz for many years. Nevertheless, he made it a badge of success. He is the piano-flogging fool, ink-dink-doodling, who was gripped by melancholy and almost quit when his friend and advisor, Lou Clayton, passed. "Without Lou," he mourned, "it was like losing my arms and legs." He made famous his mysterious farewell: "Goodnight, Mrs. Calabash, whenever you are." However, his intimates know that he has an aversion to saying good-night or goodbye at any time.

The tremendous affection Jimmy has gained probably stems from his own basic decency. He has a simple, wonderful philosophy: "This is a great world with great people in it, if you'll only open your eyes and look." And among the great people is James Durante.

From the Las Vegas sports pages of April 24th: "Headliner Phil Harris scored three aces as he and Bob Hope defeated Bing Crosby and Walter Winchell 1 up yesterday in the curtain-raiser of Wilbur Clark's Desert Inn 6th Annual Tournament of Champions, which has enriched the Runyon Cancer Fund by over $60,000 every year. Phil, Bing, Bob and Walter each scored an ace with WW rolling in a new record putt for the Desert Inn's 14th Hole. He sank a 42-footer as the large gallery of spectators (3-deep) patty-caked."

Rosemary Clooney, who is babying again, has something to sing about. She is a successful performer and a happy wife and mother. Some years ago, while she was pregnant, Miss Clooney read a film critic's review which noted: "While Miss Clooney is an attractive girl, she doesn't have the photographic glamour to carry a love story."
Miss Clooney showed the critic's comments to her groom, Jose Ferrer. He read it and promptly snapped: "I wish somebody would tell me how you got into this condition if you're not glamorous enough to provoke some sort of love affair!"

Jim Riley Says:

Death Stills Herman's Stories

The Tennessee mountains lost their greatest ambassador and without one of its stand-out humorists last Friday.

The gentleman who filled both these positions was Herman Hickman, who died on Friday in Washington.

Death has stilled the lips of one of the greatest story tellers in the world.

Herman, all 300 pounds of him, was one of the most beloved persons to ever grace a football field or a banquet table.

As for me, I lost a real friend.

Many hours I've spent laughing at the big man who came down from the Tennessee hills to make football history and to make the world laugh.

Nobody who has ever spoken a few words to the rolly-polly man with the glowing cigar came away without enjoying a good laugh.

On the football field and on scouting jobs, Herman was the most serious of individuals. But, at banquets and stag parties, the big boy was the life of the show.

Herman, who once played pro football for the now defunct Brooklyn club and who made his college mark at the University of Tennessee, was in great demand as a public speaker. He could name his own price — and get it.

Hickman will always be remembered as the outstanding assistant coach at West Point and the man who brought football back at Yale.

Hickman's stories of "shoeing time" in the Great Smokies are among the classics, as are his yarns of meal time in the mountains of Tennessee.

Herman left the coaching profession a few years back and took on television and public relations work. The big man was never the hit on TV that he was on the banquet circuit. The reason? TV was far too confining for the man with a laugh hearty enough to match the size of his body.

It has been this scribe's good fortune to spend many hours with Herman. Devoted to discussing serious football and hours of eye-wetting laughter, brought on by some of the most funny stories ever unfolded.

A complicated ulcer condition has stilled the booming voice of the huge guy from the hill country, but his name will live forever.

He put a lot of life into his 46 years on this earth.

George Sokolsky Says . . .

Railroad Problem

The President's proposal to aid the railroads by a $700,000,000 loan, with certain other alleviations of their difficulties, is, of course, a makeshift, emergency solution to a pressing problem.

The railroads have been kept in such a non-competitive bondage by the Interstate Commerce Commission that they are today, so far as passenger services are concerned, outpriced in competition with airplanes, buses, private automobiles, etc.

Because wages and prices on the railroads are absolutely controlled, as are all the terms of employment and the methods of operations, no railroad in the United States has been able to operate on a business basis, certainly since World War I when the government took over the railroads.

In a word, the railroads have not been free to meet progress and they show it. True, they have substituted the diesel for the locomotive, but that has not solved any great fundamental problem.

The air-services usually enjoy terminal facilities which are paid for out of public funds. On the other hand, the railroads have to maintain all their facilities at their own expense. It is true that many railroads received enormous concessions when they were started, but that was long ago and does not affect the present situation at all.

A railroad has to maintain a costly right-of-way, a more costly road-bed. The airlines fly in the free heavens and the protective services (beams, etc.) are maintained by the government of the United States out of taxes. Buses and trucks use public roads, paid for by the taxpayer and maintained and kept in repair by the taxpayer.

Railroads Ignored
These advantages have grown up as new means of transportation developed and no important steps have been taken to permit the railroads to keep themselves in a competitive position. In fact, the Interstate Commerce Commission, which was established to keep the railroads competitive, has actually served to make them non-competitive and bureaucratic.

A new idea usually finds desert will in this enterprise because so many authorities have to be consulted and it takes them so long to reach a decision.

The railroads are still valuable in war-time; they are absolutely essential for the mass movements of men and materials and could not be abandoned on the assumption that the alternate means of communications will serve. Air-lines and buses must, in any emergency, remain auxiliary services. In war, only the railroad can serve to move the heavy equipment required by the new-type unconventional weapons.

Therefore what is most needed is an over-all study of the entire transportation system of the nation by some capable body such as Herbert Hoover developed in his various task forces.

The object would be to analyze the position as it is today; to equate values; to produce more equity among the different means of transportation; to make public inequities in taxation and offer some solution concerning them; to disclose hidden as well as public subsidies for all transportation services; and, on the whole, to make sure that our means of moving human beings and goods are not antiquated and obsolete and bound by red-tape and senility.

On a recent train trip from New York to Miami Beach and back, our train consisted of cars of varying vintages, so that passengers, paying the same fare, enjoyed unequal facilities. This is absurd in any business.

I rode in a Rock Island Pullman which the Florida East Coast Railway had not bothered to paint over to look like its own equipment. Returning to New York, we came in more than two hours late, although the weather was excellent; there had been no accident on the road and no reason, other than very bad railroad practices and poor servicing of the diesel between trips. Also, so many trains are taken off or combined with other trains, that the diesels pull too heavy a load.

If the railroads wish to give up First Class travel, they should make an announcement to that effect. Otherwise they are accepting additional fare without providing customary additional services. When the important crack-trains are brought low, we shall know that the railroads really prefer to abandon passenger service altogether; yet passenger service is an essential railroad task.

All this needs to be studied, impartially, with a view toward restoring the primary means of transportation of the country.

Candidates Quizzed

By Mason Denison
Harrisburg — Why does a candidate become a candidate for public office?

Why does he feel he is more qualified than his opponents to emerge the victor?

Why should one be given the nod over the other candidates?

In less than three weeks Pennsylvania's voters will go to the polls to give this very nod.

There are a host of candidates for every one of the four major statewide offices at stake this year — U. S. Senator, Governor, Lieutenant-Governor and Secretary of Internal Affairs.

Two of the six candidates for Governor will be selected May 20 as the standard-bearer for each party to battle for the top flight spot in the November general election.

Four of the gubernatorial candidates are Republicans. Two are Democrats.

This column has been curious for some time as to "why" each candidate for the governorship feels he should be nominated — why he should be chosen over his opponents.

To come up with a possible answer, this column asked each of the six gubernatorial hopefuls to tell us "why" — why each feels he should gain Pennsylvania voter support in the showdown next month.

Beginning tomorrow, readers of The Pennsylvania Story will have the answer from the six gubernatorial candidates themselves as to "why" each feels that he should be given his party's nomination May 20.

It's not easy to make people laugh nowadays. George Axelrod, author of "The Seven Year Itch," explained the predicament to Mike Wallace: "Life itself is so satirical, it's itself seems to have become pretty much of a joke. And you can't make a joke on a joke."

Myself, I think Axelrod is deliberately sounding too much like the spokesman for the "beat generation" — but his words merit earnest consideration.

The father of the new president of Indivisible Motors was discovered in a corner by a reporter at a gala party. "Tell me about your son Ferris," asked the scribe. "Has his successful business career surprised you?"

"Not at all," said the father. "I knew from the start he'd be a big wheel. That's why I named him Ferris."

Battle Has Just Started

Although there is a measure of victory for the advocates of the Keystone Shortway in announcement by Secretary of Highways Lewis M. Stevens that two sections of the Sharon-to-Stroudsburg highway will be started this year, leaders of the Shortway Association and residents along the 290-mile route still face a long, hard fight to make the Shortway a reality.

The Shortway continues to encounter bitter opposition from the City of Philadelphia and its leaders. Philadelphians, through their press and statements of their political leaders, show an absolute disinterest in the remainder of the state as they condemn the Shortway and plug for nothing but new highways in the Philadelphia area.

They continue to overlook the benefits that will accrue to Philadelphia from the Shortway itself and from a revitalized economy in the 27 counties through which the Shortway will pass.

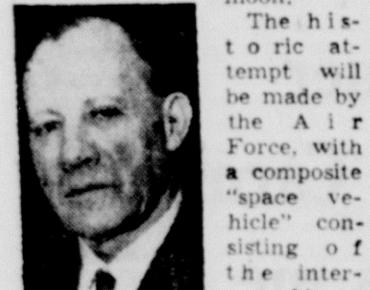

Fortunately for all of us, the Keystone Shortway Assn. is rapidly growing in strength and is developing the support that it needs to carry on the fight for the across-state highway.

Robert S. Allen Reports . . .

Moon Shot By July 4

Washington — The Fourth of July is the target date of this country's first shot at the moon.

The historic attempt will be made by the Air Force, with a composite "space vehicle" consisting of the intermediate range ballistic missile Thor and the second stage of the Navy's satellite-orbiting Vanguard.

Experts estimate the flight to the moon will take from five to seven days.

This is the real significance of that Thor-Vanguard test firing a few days ago. It was the first experiment with this combination missile.

The Cape Canaveral, Fla., Testing Center will be the site of this epic project.

It has been authorized by Defense Secretary Neil McElroy, and under his unpublished directive the Advance Research Project Agency is providing up to $20,000,000 for this purpose.

McElroy approved the July 4th plan on the urgent advice of the Central Intelligence Agency.

The Pentagon's original time schedule called for the Air Force undertaking to shoot the moon in September or October. But the CIA, in a series of detailed reports, forcefully warned that Russia has achieved the capability of doing this at any time.

The Intelligence authorities also expressed the strong belief that the Soviet will try a shot at the moon this Summer.

On the basis of this comprehensive CIA information, McElroy acceded to the Air Force's request that its initial plans be speeded up several months to make possible a July 4th firing.

Its chances of success are privately estimated by Air Force officials at 50-50.

There will be three preliminary shots to try out the Thor-Vanguard combination. A total of five shots are contemplated under the funds made available for this project.

The moon missile will contain a radio for tracking purposes, instruments to report temperatures, liquid dye and a plastic balloon.

The dye and balloon are for spotting purposes from the earth.

In this initial effort, scientists will particularly seek data on two vital matters: The density and composition of the moon's surface, and the force of gravity there, which has long been calculated as approximately one-sixth that of the earth.

Cold Busters — The Navy wants to build a chain of nuclear clear power plants in the vast and icy reaches of Antarctica.

Estimated cost of this huge project is $100,000,000.

First of these multi-million dollar nuclear power plants would be at the Navy's base at McMurdo Sound. This plant would solve a major logistic problem by virtually eliminating the need for fuel, which now constitutes approximately 70 percent of the cargo of supply ships.

The State Department is critical of this Navy plan.

Reason given is that it would "antagonize" leading U. S. allies. The State Department contends that construction of U. S. nuclear power plants in Antarctica would be viewed by Britain, Austria, New Zealand, Norway, Japan and other friendly nations as "hostile to their interests."

The Navy argues that establishment of permanent bases in Antarctica is urgent for two defense reasons: To counter known Russian plans to do that, and to safeguard Drake Strait, between Cape Horn and Graham Land, which would become a crucial sea route in the event the Panama Canal is destroyed by attack.

This eventful backstage clash has been put up to the National Security Council for decision.

Meanwhile, the Navy is planning to send two of its atomic submarines on unique exploration missions in the Antarctic later this year. The Nautilus and Skate will be used for this purpose.

Note: Navy scientists found the radioactivity count in Little America far less than in the U. S.

Sparks — Assistant Army Secretary Hugh Milton will be promoted to succeed Undersecretary Charles Finucane, who is resigning to enter private business. . . Brazil is making an unusual request of Russia. Brazil wants to advertise its coffee in Russian papers, particularly in Moscow. Brazil is proposing to pay for these ads with coffee.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

I don't know about you but I delighted in that rain. At least it gave me a good excuse for cancelling my scheduled return bout with the power lawn mower. The pretty girls in the ads don't seem to have any trouble—or any muscles either—but I'll challenge any one of them to try my lawn mower on my alleged lawn.

Starting any kind of gasoline motor, from motor boat to lawn mower, takes me up to start with. The wheel you wind the cord on is just tucked away enough to pinch your fingers as you wind, and the notch to hold the knot doesn't.

After winding and yanking, winding and yanking half a dozen times during which I manage to hit myself in the teeth with the wooden handle, and sock myself in the chin with the steering post when my foot slips just as I get braced for a mighty pull—I also develop a crick in my neck.

But that's better than having no neck at all—which seems likely when the motor does start and the whole machine starts shaking like one of these vibrating machines with me vibrating right along with it. But off we go, teeth chattering, joints clattering, machine roaring.

Until it hits a lush patch of grass, where it stalls. But it's easier to start the second time and then we hit a patch where the grass is thin and we go into our St. Vitus dance again.

To the idle eye, the lawn is gently sloping, but get pushing a lawnmower and it takes on all the aspects of climbing Mt. Everest going up, and one of those ice toboggan slides going down. Well, try it on the bias, then. That's a little better but erratic, like trying to row straight across a river current.

However, now both you and the machine are in the spirit of the thing and you enter one of those blank periods where there is no time, and it seems as if you're doomed forever to go jittering, jouncing, pulling and pushing, over green stuff that stretches as far as the eye can see.

Eventually it will stall again. The thing to do then is to put it away quick and take your pained, panting, blistered self inside, promising to finish the job tomorrow. Tomorrow it just might rain! And it did.

Miss Catherine Diane Whitfield

Brumbaugh Wedding In June

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Japeth Whitfield, Jr., of Suffolk, Va., announce the engagement of their daughter, Catherine Diane to Frank Samuel Brumbaugh, son of Dr. and Mrs. Elmer Ralph Brumbaugh of Pen Argyl.

All this talk about new and powerful secret weapons is both terrible and, in a measure, reassuring . . . but I feel that one "secret weapon" which has never been properly appreciated is right at hand, and has been for more years than I recall. The microphone.

The microphone is, actually, a very harmless gadget. It doesn't give off radio-active rays that can wither and destroy . . . it doesn't explode with devastating effect. It simply hangs in front of your mouth, or stands before you . . . but is, in the opinion of many, far more deadly than a hydrogen bomb. Place some persons in front of a mike, and they turn green around the gills as though they were rocking around in a stormy sea. Others burst out in beads of perspiration the size of hailstones . . . some, I am told, even faint. Very few persons take a Mike in stride at the beginning. Either they clam up like an oyster with a gummed-up shell, or become touchily aggressive. Like a record with its needle stuck, the latter keeps reminding you, "I just couldn't say a word into that thing."

This was the case Friday when Doris Hinton, our jewelry buyer, suddenly appeared at WVPO just about air time. She was wearing something entirely new in the jewelry line—an illusion necklace and earring set. When I first glanced at her in the rather dim hallway, I thought she was wearing prettily cut crystals and baroque pearls PASTED to her skin at intervals of approximately two inches. I wasn't quite sure what was holding the baroque pearl midway between ear and shoulder. Closer examination proved that the baubles were strung on flesh-tinted, almost invisible wire.

"Talk about them, won't you?" Doris asked. "They're so new, I'm all enthused about them, and I just brought them back from New York."

"Why don't you talk about them?" I suggested.

"ME?" Doris gasped. "Well, I will not . . . I couldn't possibly get a word out over the air. I'd choke. Now look here! YOU get paid to talk, YOU do it!"

Doris also had a note from the Sportswear department about two-piece chemise separates in a saten floral which she wanted read. "Carrie's wearing them today and looks lovely. Tell the customers to be sure and see her."

By that time, I had edged my reluctant visitor into the studio. "Okay," I said, "I'll talk. But suppose you sit here . . . you're not in any hurry, and you know all the answers. Why don't we just chat about these things?"

Doris leaped from her chair. "Goodbye," she pronounced firmly. "I'm going over to the store."

"You do," I said, equally firmly, "and I'll slug you. Just sit down a while, and I promise you you needn't do anything but answer one or two short easy questions."

The theme was playing when Doris said, "You know, sometime you might mention our jewelry repair service on the radio. A great many people don't know we send beads away to be restringed, or that we can have stones replaced many times." Learning closer she observed, "They did a wonderful job on that earring drop of yours, didn't they?"

In a few minutes she was chatting away like a veteran . . . about illusion jewels at 2.00 each piece, and the chemise separates at sometime like 16.00 a set. Without her even realizing how it happened, the secret weapon had lost its power. Just between us, I KNEW my friend Doris could never remain speechless for long!

3 Questions On Tap For Derby Race

By JOHN CHANDLER

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — With the 84th running of the Kentucky Derby just six days off, three major questions loomed Sunday as a torrential rainstorm drenched the city and left the Churchill Downs track a lake of mud and water.

First, there was the problem of a jockey for Tim Tam, the probable favorite, after an accident that left Bill Hartack with a broken leg.

Second, opinion was widely divergent about slowpoke Sikky, the greatest Sullivan since John L. Can the California eccentric lag 30 lengths behind, then get going quick enough and fast enough to grab the roses?

And third, with at least two dozen horses still on the possible list, how many will line up next Saturday in the $125,000-added scramble for America's most coveted racing prize?

Slows Up Drills
Rain, which began Saturday and continued almost without letup, slowed up the training schedules a bit Sunday morning. At times it flowed faster than mint juleps at a Kentucky Colonel's party, and men and horses alike huddled in the barns.

Hartack insists he might ride with his left leg in a cast. But Jimmy Jones, trainer for the Clumet Farm, was looking for another jockey. Dr. George F. Swyer, the track physician, said Hartack would be unable to ride.

"I'll just have to wait and see who's available," said Jones right after Hartack's mount roared in the starting gate before the second race Saturday and tossed his rider over the backboard. Hartack, who won the derby aboard Calumet's Iron Liege last year, suffered a broken fibula, the small bone between the ankle and knee.

Usual Show
Sikky Sullivan put on his usual sensational show in the Stepping Stone Purse Saturday, coming from about 32 lengths back with a furious stretch drive. He got fourth place, but the race was only seven furlongs, the derby is a mile and one quarter, or 10 furlongs, and Sikky's backers say the extra distance will be right up the Ross and Kipstein colt's alley.

Mrs. Lora Birr's Belleau Farm's Lincoln Road was third. The latest count down at the Derby barns showed 26 names still on the possible Derby list, but this will be trimmed to half a dozen or more. The weather will take care of some and the thought of shelling out another $150,000 to start may cool off a few others.

Red Sox End Nats Hex Via Wall's Relief

BOSTON — The struggling Boston Red Sox ended a Washington hex by building up a seven run lead and hanging on for a 7-5 victory over the Senators Sunday on Murray Wall's strong relief pitching.

The Red Sox, off to one of their worst starts in history, climbed out of the American League cellar past idle Chicago with their first triumph in six early season games with Washington.

Wall, a 31-year-old relief specialist obtained from Dallas of the Texas League last August, put down a big rally by Washington in the seventh and then retired the Nats in order in the last two innings.

Boxer Reported Out Of Danger

HOLLYWOOD — Lightweight Julian Velasquez, who went into a coma following a 10th-round knockdown Saturday night was pronounced out of danger Sunday by doctors at Parkview Hospital.

The 21-year-old boxer, floored for an eight-count by Eddie Gaspard in the main event at Legion Stadium, collapsed when he moved forward to resume fighting. He was unable to get up and was taken from the ring on a stretcher.

Although tests have not been completed doctors said there are definite indications he suffered a brain concussion from a jolting left-hook, right uppercut combination delivered by Gaspard.

Times Answer Any Dispute

Penn Relay Entrants Better Than Those Teams In Drake

By LEE LINDER

PHILADELPHIA — It cannot be disputed for the times are history, but the figures show that the college relay teams that participated in the Penn Relay Carnival were superior in seven of eight championship races over those who won in the Drake competition at Des Moines.

Runners at the 64th annual Penn Meet over the weekend broke carnival records in six relays: the half-mile, the distance medley, the sprint medley, 400-yard shuttle hurdles, four-mile, two-mile and one-mile.

Individually, however, it appeared to be a standoff. But what slight edge there was favored the Easterners.

There were great single efforts at both relays. At neither meet was the sun shone brightly and the tracks were fast.

Only in the sprint medley relay did the Drake College runners surpass the winning teams at Penn—Nebraska compiling a 3:21.9 clocking to Villanova's 3:22.5, a new record nevertheless for the Wildcats.

Dodgers Plan To TV Away

LOS ANGELES — The Los Angeles Dodgers changed signals Sunday and decided to put some of their games away from home on television.

President Walter F. O'Malley said that all the remaining Los Angeles games at San Francisco will be televised back to Los Angeles.

The Dodgers had been criticized in the press for not providing television of games away from home on the grounds that such television would build up a bigger fan following.

Leonard Las Vegas Winner; Snaps Wall's Journey Mark

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Canada's Stan Leonard, who gambled a steady golf club professional job for a whirl along the risky tournament trail, cashed in for his richest victory Sunday when he won the $40,000 Tournament of Champions and the $10,000 first prize.

The 43-year-old veteran from Vancouver outdueled Billy Casper of Apple Valley, Calif., to win the event by one stroke in a thrilling head-to-head struggle.

Leonard shot a 4-under par 68 for a 72-hole total of 275, 13 strokes under par and a new record for the six-year-old desert spa attraction.

Casper came in with a 70 for 276 and the $5,000 second money, also under the previous tournament record of 278 set in 1954 by Art Wall Jr.

The scene was the Desert Inn Country Club, with its par of 36-36 — 72 for the 7,048-yard sunbaked layout.

Stranahan 3rd
Frank Stranahan finished third with a 71 for 280.

Leonard's victory ended the three-year reign of Gene Littler, who had a 68 for 281 and a tie with Tommy Bolt, who had a 74.

Casper had led from the outset with scores of 65-70-71 and went into Sunday's final 18 holes with a one-stroke lead over Leonard and Bolt.

Water Hazard
Casper lost the contest and the tournament when he fell afoul of the water hazard on the 406-yard 17th hole. He wound up with a double bogey 6 to Leonard's par 4.

Dutch Harrison and Arnold Palmer, with a pair of 70s, finished at 282, and tied at 283 were Ken Venturi, the pre-tournament favorite, with a 69; George Bayer, 71, and Gardner Dickinson, 72.
